

Berkley Life Sciences LLC to Present at Upcoming LifeScience Alley Program

Risk Management Specialist to Discuss Ways to Keep (Law) Suits from Chafing

Berkley Life Sciences LLC, which focuses exclusively on the insurance needs of life science companies, announces that its Vice President of Risk Management Services, Kevin Quinley, will present at a LifeScience Alley program on March 30th at 8:00 AM at the Doubletree Hotel, Minneapolis-Park Place. The presentation's theme is, "What Kind of Suit is Expensive but Never Fashionable?"

About the session ...

An ill-fitting suit can chafe, itch and annoy. A different type of suit – a product liability action – can similarly vex a life science firm and threaten its financial health. Life science companies face a challenging legal and regulatory environment. Among these challenges is the specter of product liability arising from patients claiming injury from adverse medical outcomes. Product liability claims can be very costly – funds to pay settlements, judgments and legal fees can represent a financial hemorrhage.

How can firms stanch the bleeding and boost their immune system when it comes to product liability? What are some of the "hot spots" in life science product liability claims? Most importantly, what proactive risk mitigation strategies can life science companies arm themselves with to thwart these suits and avoid their financial aftershocks?

These questions and others will be addressed by Kevin Quinley CPCU of Berkley Life Sciences LLC. Mr. Quinley has over 20 years of experience in life science product liability claims and risk management. He has worked with firms as small as startups and as large as Fortune 500 companies in finding ways to defend and mitigate product liability claims. He is the author of over 600 articles and ten books on insurance and risk management. Invest time in this session to add to your toolbox of techniques that can help you save money and strengthen your financial protection.
